

CLOSING DATE
10th April 2020

SENIOR TECHNOLOGIST

JOB ROLE

Working with customers the Senior Technologist will design and develop new medical devices and products. The role will primarily be focus in the Trauma segment but will also be required to cover other medical projects as and when required. The successful candidate will work closely with Regulatory and Quality functions to ensure compliance with ISO13485 and ISO14971

REQUIREMENTS

Educated to degree level in relevant scientific discipline with medical device design and development experience, candidates must possess strong analytical, communication, delivery and team working skills as well as accuracy and attention to detail. A team player with a proven ability to manage projects within a fast paced business environment, you will be self-motivated with a proactive nature and the ability to work to tight timescales and be flexible and adaptable to cope with changing priorities.

▶ TO APPLY

In addition to a competitive salary we also provide a range of attractive benefits, including company pension and healthcare schemes. If you believe you have the drive and potential required to join our team, please email your CV to:

HR@victrex.com. (No Agencies)

ABOUT INVIBIO

Invibio, part of the Victrex plc group of companies, is a global leader in providing high-performance biomaterial solutions to medical device manufacturers. The company provides PEEK-OPTIMA™ polymers, advanced technical research and support and manufacturing of components for spine, trauma and orthopaedic and dental medical segments for the development of long-term implantable medical devices. Today, Invibio's PEEK-OPTIMA™ polymers are used in approximately 9 million implanted devices worldwide.

▶ www.invibio.com  